Scam Alert!

SpooF Emails Impersonating Betting System Truths

BEWARE!

Hi BST readers, It is always difficult to know when you receive an email from BST that it is actually from Betting System Truths. Recently we hurt the people behind Arbitrage Spy so much they are trying to make sales off our own backs, because they know we are a respected source for information. The emails today did not come from us.

A few things to look out for when reading an email from Betting System Truths.

The easiest way to know if its from us or not is to go to the BST blog and click on the "Old Newsletters" TAB. All Official Newsletters sent out by Betting System Truths can be found here. IF the newsletter you have received is not posted there, then we did not send it! How simple can it be!

Things to remember...

1) We do not promote Click bank Products, unless it has passed a review on the blog. If your unsure check the blog and see if it has been reviewed. [\[Blog Is Here\]](#)

2) The link once pressed in your browser no matter which product we are recommending will always be in the following formats;

A Product that has not been reviewed on the blog yet.

<http://www.irec.ommend.com/PRODUCTNAMEHERE>

Products which are being reviewed on Betting System Truths.

<http://www.bettingsystemtruths.com/review/PRODUCTNAMEHERE>

The transmissions are always from *Betting System Truths, take notice of where the letter "s" is positioned in the title after "Truth" not after "System".

What has this week proved?

They have proved that we at BST are succeeding and are effecting their sales.

They are desperate now and need to up the game to get sales. So decide to try and deceive their own readers to think an email is from Betting System Truths. What does that say about their business if they are having to do that? They have to convince their own readers on their list that they are Betting System Truths. They have shown their true colours, I think you will agree.

New Reviews

Analytical Pro - Reviewer Sgt Jon

After receiving his answer from the author Sgt Jon published his Introduction for this new system. So what is Analytical Pro it is a Backing system that uses the authors own rating criteria to get selections, you have normal and Naps. Claimed strike rate is high 70% for the normal selections and 80% for Naps, also the author says he has a success rate of 50% for reverse forecasts.

The cost of the system is $67 which is approximately £54 through Clickbank, apart from the 60 day money back guarantee the author claims on the AP website that he will refund your money if you fail to make a profit in any month. For your cash you get a 4 page PDF e-book that sets out the rules, a computer version and a free laying system. All sounds good but the proof of the pudding is in the eating so let's see what the review brings. Sgt Jon will be doing a weekly report as he suspects that there will not be many selections and P/L will be to BFSP.

Final Reviews

We have 2 Final Reviews this week one passed and one failed and in neutral we have a Betfair Pirate Update.

Passed 5*Highly Recommended

None for the period of August 30th to 5th September

Passed! Minimum 84 day Review

Profit from Systems Lays - Reviewer Sgt Dave

Sgt Dave split the Profit from Systems Final Review in to two, as you can go on the PFS website and have 3 options either to subscribe to Backs, Lays or both, during the review period he has been listing the results for the Backs and Lays separately. The Lay part of the service was given a 3.5 stars rating and classed as passed it could have been higher but their was only 5 months of data to check and that included the 84 day review period.

For the 84 period the service gave 182 selections with 155 being winning lays that's a strike rate of 85.18%, and produced a profit of 36.17 points. Average price of all selections was 5.64 and for the losing lays 5.22, longest losing run was 2 and the longest winning run was 33. So it appears to be a steady service, no nasty shocks and a steady profit which is actually greater than the advertised 8 points per month. Sgt Dave also quoted figures from March 27th this year onwards and all data seemed to be very similar so this will be monitored to see if it can maintain its success in the forthcoming months.

Upto day 84	This Period	Cumulative
	P/L	100 point Start Bank	P/L
Lays	N/A	136.17 points	+36.17 points

Released On Bail (Neutral)

Betfair Pirate Update – Reviewer Sgt Marc

Sgt Marc issued an update for the last 14 days since trial ended, so I have added these to the original 84 day review final figures. So for the 14 day period the original system had 120 selections with 92 winning lays and a loss of 31.10 points, for the new filter system it was not much better with 55 selections and 42 winning lays producing a loss of 20.45 points. As Sgt Marc is going to be giving updates on the first of each month I shall post an update in this section.

Update (14 days)	This Period	Cumulative
	P/L	150 point Start Bank	P/L
Original System	- 31.10 points	120.66 points	-29.34 points
Filtered System	- 20.45 points	121.75 points	-28.25 points

Failed and Jailed

Profit from Systems Backs – Final Review - Reviewer Sgt Dave

Profits from Systems Final Review has been split in to two parts by Sgt Dave unlike its Lay counterpart the Backs made a loss to the tune of minus 51.15 points over the review period. Out of 627 selections it had 120 winners a strike rate of 19.14%, average price of winner being 5.22 BFSP. Lack of a long winning run and the 2 and 3 point selections not performing well, certainly contributed to the large loss. Even if deducting the 2 and 3 point selections the profit of 4.97 points you got, hardly lives up to the profit claims on the website and certainly does not justify the £35 per month price tag; rating given only 2 stars.

Upto day 84	This Period	Cumulative
	P/L	100 point Start Bank	P/L
Backs	N/A	51.15 points	-48.85 points

Racing Secrets Exposed (Tips) - Reviewer Sgt Rob

Not such a good week despite getting 8 winning lays from the 10, as the losing ones were at 12.00 and 7.4 BFSP, and because of these all the gains made in the previous weeks have been erased.

Upto day 35	This Period	Cumulative

Racing Winners - Reviewer Sgt Thomas

Bit of a roller coaster this one week up and one week down, after last weeks high now it is time for the low. Only 1 winner from 12 selections meant a loss of 11.58 points on the week. Having said that it well ahead of schedule in doubling the bank within 3 months so it only natural to have losing weeks as the strike rate balances out.

Upto day 28	This Period	Cumulative
	- 11.58 points	174.37 points	+74.37 points

The Wizard Of Odds - Reviewer Sgt Thomas

Well after a bright start things certainly went astray this week, 11 selections with only 4 short priced winners meant losses on both staking plans. For Level Stakes it lost 5.31 points and for the Staking Plan a fairly large minus 19.32 points. Interesting to see how this system will recover from this setback.

Upto day 12	This Period	Cumulative
	P/L	100 point Start Bank	P/L
Level Stakes	- 5.31 points	98.11 points	-1.89 points
Staking Plan	- 19.32 points	91.07 points	-8.93 points

Betting Advice

I have seen several comments on the blog and other places with folks saying I got x amount to spare I want to be become a full time Professional Backer give up my job etc so this article is for you.

Most folk are under the assumption that professional gamblers have one bet, play one game of poker, or most other form of betting, and then collect the winnings and go back to their castle in the country for a few months rest, before having another gamble!!

Most full time professional wish it was like that, but in legitimate life it is vastly different. Most work 10-12 hours a day, 360 days a year, and still do a bit on their days off, including Christmas day. When you see professional poker players they are spending 3-5 days at a table in a tournament every week, sometimes sitting for 12 hours, and when they are not doing that, they are at home playing poker on the computer. So if you are looking for a relaxing life, do not take up gambling as a profession. Yes it can pay well, very well, but you need to put in a lot of work, and it can be 2-3 years before you are making any meaningful money. Anyone who tells you otherwise is in all likelihood lying just to receive your hard cash

When you see tipping advertisers stating things like "We made £26,000 to £100 stakes in the last 12 months", it looks breathtaking. However, they need to receive your attention as a 1/8th ad in a paper costs around £500, and they need that funds back before turning a profit. And how many average gamblers have £100 to bet, especially when you need a betting bank, and with £100 stakes, the cash you need before you even place one bet is around £3,500, any less and you can easily blow it all. Then divide the £26,000 by the £100 to work out how many countless points you make a year, and that is 260, then divide by 52 to see how numerous points profit a week, and that comes to 5pts a week. Wow!! If you are just starting off you are likely to only be using a realistic £5, so that is £25 a week average. That may not sound much but you have to learn to walk before you can run. If you cannot profit with smaller bets, how the hell will you profit with £100 bets?

Also think why various tipsters advertise every day. This is because they have such a large turnover; they need to keep renewing the customer base. This does not always mean the tipster is rubbish, but probably is in most instances, but in the rare few that are profitable long term the average Joe Punter always wants profit NOW and every day and average Joe wants more than 5 points per week, whereas a full time professional would be happy with that.

If you are going to gamble to profit, then for the initial few months this should be your basic training were you will be doing a lot of work for little return, but you will also learn how to handle losing runs, how to cope with mistakes, and if it does all go improper and you lose the betting bank, you should have learnt a lot from it for as little loss as possible, as you should only ever bet what you can afford to lose, especially while proving to yourself you can profit. You may have a spare £10,000 available, but prove you can profit with a £1000 bank to start with, and then add to the bank monthly.

Note

Risk Management: Most people follow one tipster, or one system. This is usually suicide, you do not see the big boys in the city markets investing everything in one stock do you? No. They spread it around, and so should you. Use a number of systems, proven tipsters, method bets, etc. And ensure you have a separate betting bank for each (you can use the same betting account, as the spreadsheets you keep will show you the amount in each betting bank).

Do you still want to make a living from becoming a full time Professional Gambler?
