INTRODUCTION

Hi Folks,

We have one New Review, and two Final Reviews. The controversial 9 Minute System has been given a pass, but Getfair Racing has failed.

This week's league table shows that Champion Draws has powered ahead again this week. Flat Ratings Pro is about half way through an 84 day review and looks promising so far. On the graph of the profit being made by the front runners, as a percentage of their starting bank, you can see that Flat Ratings Pro is showing an almost perfect upward trend! This graph gives a week by week view of their progress since we started this form of the league table.

Profit expressed as a percentage of start bank is not everything. Please read the full reviews of anything that interests you!

We have a quieter Bloggers Corner this week. We'd like to hear from you, please contact me via the Bloggers Corner at rich@bettingssystemtruths.com

Laytime Soccer – Introduction

Sgt Jon Introduces Laytime Soccer

Hi Bloggers

Laytime Soccer is another football tipster service focussing mainly on laying in the match, draw and correct score markets.

There are normally around 5 tips each week for Laytime Soccer sent by email as well as being posted on a web page managed for the author by Betfan at www.betfan.co.uk

The author of Laytime Soccer states that he proofed his selections in January 2011 to Betfan and achieved a 100% strike rate with 21 winning lays from 21 selections although I have not been able to see any detailed results. Let's hope that strike rate is maintained during our trial of Laytime Soccer

I will post results for Laytime Soccer daily using Betfair and will use prices available in the early morning as I cannot monitor live markets every day.

The author of Laytime Soccer recommends a betting bank of 200 points and to stake 5% of the bank as the liability on each lay.

As an aside, the sales web site is written in a large and colourful font which seems to be the latest fad although it seems Newcastle may have found the perfect replacement for Andy Carroll! (Apologies to our lady readers).

Getfair Racing System – Review Summary

February 13th 2011

Sgt Marc gives his final review for Getfair Racing System

I guess it is time to put the Getfair Racing System out of its misery.....

Hi Constables,

It is difficult to say much about this, since the results for the Getfair Racing System speak for themselves.

The Getfair Racing System just never really got started. In theory, one could point to long periods of bad weather, but 56 days is more than enough time for the Getfair Racing System to try and prove itself.

The only positive observation that I can really speak of is the way that the author, very conscientiously, on a daily basis supplied the selections via email in a very efficient way.

Unfortunately, on this occasion the Getfair Racing System did not perform in the style that we had hoped for.

Cumulative Total For The Trial: -9.34 Points.

9 Minute System – Final Review

15th November to 10th February

Passed - Rating: ★★★★★

My Introduction to the 9 Minute System said:

This isn't a gambling system and definitely isn't a system where one makes selections based upon form or past results and then have a punt on a selection. Neither is it a betting strategy that lays out a procedure to follow with skilled application, requiring judgement. So what is it? It's more an account balancing exercise, based upon mathematics. It uses the medium of horse racing, but the important things are the odds and playing them to make a profit.

I also said that if you followed the maths correctly then a profit is inevitable. This has certainly proved to be the case during the 84 day review period. For Variant One there were occasional very small losses on the day, while waiting for the profit to be realised in the next race on the next day. Variants Two and Three would make small losses until a day was reached when a winner was found. At that point the profit would be greater than Variant One. So whichever Variant you used, you would have made a profit, just as the system predicts.

You NEVER risk the betting bank! Unlike other systems and tips where you have to assign a "bank" that you are willing to lose or see depleted during a bad run. The 9 Minute system NEVER has a losing run and the "bank" is never depleted apart from the small percentage temporary losses as described above on the various variants.

No, the bank is simply a fund you need available to place the back and lay bets. It is the liquidity needed to cover your bets, which are matched so that a net loss is not incurred on each selection. With variant 2 and 3, when the horse is a loser, you lose the Betfair 5% of the stake laid on the horse. This is recovered when you find a winner. So you can go for 20 losing horses before you have lost a total of 1 point. A winner gives you 1 point profit. So you can see this is pretty robust!

With variant 1 you allow for the 5% Betfair commission in your stakes, so lose nothing when you get a losing horse. But when you get a winning horse your gain is less than one point. Either way, you would have made between 12.45% and 13.42% profit over 84 days without EVER risking any of the "bank"! You could have made this 12 to 13 point profit using a liquidity bank of FAR LESS than 100 points. You simply would have had to transfer funds between the Bookie and Betfair more often to keep enough liquidity in each account.

At the start of the review I had to make a guess of the number of points I should have in the Bookie account and how much in the BetFair account. I guessed at 10 points with the Bookie and 90 points with Betfair. This proved to be pretty accurate as I only had to transfer funds across one way or the other a couple of times in 84 days. But let me say once again this 100 points was never at risk and was never compromised. Every day of the 84, the balances either went up, stayed the same or went down by 0.05 points Betfair commission on a 1 point lay bet.

10 points in the Bookie account allows for 10 consecutive losing horses before a transfer is needed. 90 points in Betfair allows for several consecutive winning horses at odds between 4/1 and 14/1.

The only proviso is that when a winning horse is found you do need to act quickly on the next selected race to find a loser (preferably) so you do need enough funds in Betfair to cover a second lay bet.

That's basically it! Guaranteed FREE MONEY! With no risk attached to the wager!

A blogger commented that it seemed a lot of work for small returns and the 13% profit does look like chicken-feed. But this is 13% of a nominal 100 points. I reckon you could have made 13 points profit on 4 or 5 points in the Bookie account and maybe 30 points in Betfair. That becomes about 37% profit, again on a liquidity bank that is never dented!

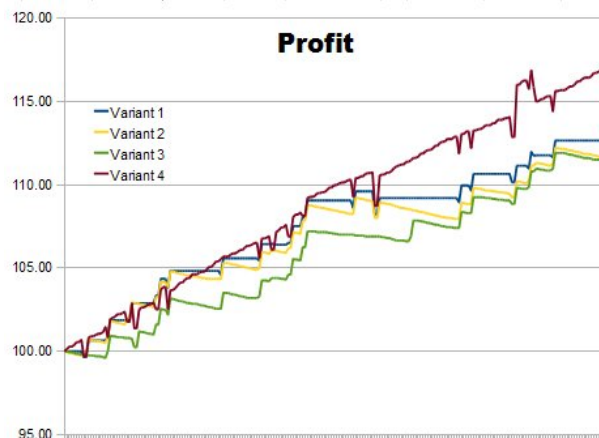

Starts to look more worthwhile. You just would need to transfer money more often and on occasion, maybe quite quickly. You could have funds on your credit card for a quick deposit into the Bookies when needed after a few losing horses and likewise for Betfair after a couple of winning horses.

The slower way to transfer funds is to bet and lay on another market, as I discussed in the newsletter #34 "How to be a mug punter". After racing, you could perhaps back and lay on the soccer. If you want to bulk up the Bookie account, pick a bet that is fairly certain to win. If you want to transfer funds out of the Bookie account into Betfair, pick a bet that is likely to lose. Take a small loss on the odds differential if necessary and look on that as an interest charge or small taxation on your already won FREE money! Of course the bets can go in an unexpected way, so have your credit card ready for the next day's racing, just in case!

I hope I have explained all this as clearly as I can without giving away the details of the system, which would not be fair on the vendor and the purchasers.

A quick note on Variant 3 – this limits the liability on the lay bets but does mean there are more races where no selection is found. The profit is only slightly reduced.

As I said in the comments to the Intro to this system, I had already seen a different variant of this on a forum quite a while ago. I've been running this in the background for the 84 days, calling it Variant 4. Through the whole of this period it has always been slightly ahead of the three variants and ended on 116.97 points, representing about 25% improvement over Variant 1. This variant makes steady gains in most races and just an occasional slight loss of up to a point when a winning horse is selected.

Variant 4 is available free to anyone who contacts admin with proof of purchase of the 9 minute system.

Guaranteed, risk-free free money! Yet this system is unpopular with many, or so it seems from comments on this blog!

I'll try to address some of these opinions made by bloggers:

- You'll "get busted" by the Bookie and have your account restricted – not in my experience. I've had 147 bets with the Bookie and 21 winners showing a net profit of 1 point with the bookie and requiring a transfer of funds from Betfair to Bookie at one stage. My profile with the Bookie should pretty much be one of a "mug punter".
- It takes more than nine minutes – true in my experience. Sometimes you can log onto the race and see a match instantly, in which case it takes about 30 seconds. Other times you have to watch for up to half an hour to find your bet.
- It only uses one particular Bookie – true
- The Bookie could withdraw the offer – true, but a reliable friend tells me this offer has currently been running for about 4 years.
- They could restrict you due to overuse. That's possible, but I've mixed my bets with others with this bookie so that I look like a "mug".
- The main part of the system has been around for 2 or 3 years – True – see my Variant 4.
- Some people will feel "ripped off" when they buy the system – well if you can work out this system yourself – then good for you, if you can't – is the info worth £67? I'd seen a free version (variant 4) about a year and a half ago and dismissed it as too complicated, too tricky, etc, based upon mainly misinformed opinions stated by people on a forum. Would I have been happy to pay £67 to have the system clarified with various other variations? Absolutely! How much is £10 per day risk-free guaranteed free money worth?

I think that covers most of the complaints expressed in comments on this review.

If you feel £67 is too much to pay for basic simple info that may have you feeling annoyed and thinking "Doh! why didn't I think of that loophole?" then absolutely don't buy the 9 minute system.

Please read my Introduction at the start of this review to read what can go wrong and see my advice about paper-trading until you understand the system. It seems to me that it is easily misunderstood.

There is a cap or upper limit to how much you can make with this system. You are limited to £50 for 1 point. So a 13.42 point profit for Variant 1 would be £671 and for variant 4, 16.97 points would be £848.50. That's how much you would have made over 84 days.

If you were using a 100 point liquidity fund (risk-free bank) you would have needed £5,000 of available funds. If you'd been prepared to transfer funds more often, you could have made this profit with say the 35 point funds suggested earlier in this review. That would have been about £1,750 funding with more frequent transfers between Bookie and Betfair.

So that's how you could use £1,750 to make £10 risk-free guaranteed free money each and every day. I work out £10 per day as being about 15% of the national average wage or about 50% of the State Pension!

Someone commented it is a lot of work for small returns. If your local supermarket offered you a free £10 note every day, with no purchase necessary, so long as you popped into the supermarket each day, would you take it most days, or consider it too much hassle?

In my experience this system does need you to be at the computer for a period before each race. I tried getting the bets at lunchtime and sometimes I managed it. But if you select a winner, unless you also had a selection already for the second race, you must be at the computer to get the odds on the second race. Therefore I think this is only suitable if you are free to watch the odds for the half an hour before each race.

There are days when the profit doesn't shift on variants 1 to 3, as you can see when you look at my daily reports. Variant 4 usually makes a small profit of a fraction of 1 point on every race. Therefore it requires patience to run this system, waiting for the 1 point or £50 profit to come along after several days of no profit. If you don't have the patience to do this, then don't buy the 9 Minute system.

So this long review has been my attempt to explain the pros and cons of this system. Personally I love it! But I am at my computer almost all racing days, trading, so for me it is a no-brainer that I should pick up this risk-free money. I am however aware that some people hate this system. But I love getting FREE money! I get a buzz every time the Bookie tells me they have given me some money!

Here's an attempt to work out a rating for the 9 Minute system:

- Profitability compared to liquidity needed: 3 stars out of 5 – it is capped to a max of £50 bookie bets needing up to 35 times that to cover the back and lay
- Ease of use: 4 stars out of 5 – getting the matched odds is easier than I expected, but does require patience while you watch the odds and also the discipline to leave the race alone if you can't find the odds.
- Risk: 5 stars out of 5 – it is risk-free. I like that! I don't like high-risk strategies.
- Return on investment (ROI): 1 star out of 5. Total invested with the Bookie was 147 points and with Betfair the total liability on all lay bets was approx 7 times that. But they are matched – risk-free, so in this case the ROI is more or less meaningless. The “investment” is never put at risk.
- Support and documentation: 4 stars out of 5. The PDF document is clear, but needs careful study to get a full understanding. The author supported me over a question over what to do after a winner. I'll include his advice in the Variant 4 document available from admin.
- Time needed to apply the system: 3 stars out of 5. Each race takes up to 30 minutes and in practice this needs to be the half hour up to the off time.
- The average of the above is 3.33 stars, so I am passing this system with a rating of 3.5 stars.

Results for the 84 day review period:

Blogger's Corner

Please send your e-mail contributions to the Bloggers Corner to me at rich@bettingssystemtruths.com .

One of our bloggers, Michael, contacted us with this info about Sports Betting Dynamics:

In the introduction to Sports Betting Dynamics it's mentioned that a starting bank is unknown. I wanted to point out that in the free trial 1/27 email it mentions the following starting recommended bank of 300 units ....

I recommend a starting bank of 300 units (points). Divide your capital by 300 and the figure you arrive at is the equivalent of 1 UNIT / POINT ...

Thanks very much Michael – I passed that on to reviewer Dave and he has updated his review.

League Table of Current Reviews

The systems under review have different starting banks, different stakes and some systems have variable stakes. A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank and to average this out over the number of the days of the review.

Champion Draws is still number one and Sports Bet Gold has made losses for the last three weeks. Betfair Success Formula has had a good third week and stays at #2, but it is very early days for this one. Sports Betting Dynamics has got off to a good start. Soccer Magic has staged a recovery and Flat Ratings Pro is proving one to watch!

Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit %age of bank per day is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, I think it gives a valid comparison and an at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

Profitability Graph

I'm including again, a graph of the profit being made by the front runners as a percentage of their starting bank. This gives a week by week comparative view of their progress since we started this form of the league table in newsletter #30.

It gives a representation of the volatility or dependability of each system. For example Betting Grenade has been a rollercoaster ride whereas Champion Draws has shown an overall steadily increasing profit. Ideally we would want a graph that increased each week by roughly the same amount. If a system or tipping service could produce that, then we would really have a winning review!

Profit as a %age of starting bank

In the above graphs you can also see that Soccer Magic is trending upwards again. Sports Bet Gold has lost nearly all the profit it had made as of newsletter #30. Flat Ratings Pro now shows a steady upward trending profit – so far it is the least volatile of all the front runners, making steady profit most weeks with just a couple of slight losses. Early days yet for Betfair Success Formula and for Sports Betting Dynamics I'll add successful reviews as they occur.

Are you a 1%er?

Every day try to make an average profit of 1% of your betting bank. What is your reaction to that statement?

- Easy.
- Not enough.
- Hard.

If you think it is easy to average 1% profit every day, take an honest look at your recent betting. Have you actually averaged that %age or greater or do you just think that you have? Do the bad days or the impetuous bets wipe out the profits of other days?

It takes discipline to consistently make a profit. I know personally this is a weak point for me. Every now and then, for some reason, I make a stupid wager and wipe out the previous good, disciplined work. Only yesterday after days of making good profit, I clicked the Lay button on a race I should never have bet on, the horse looked a certain loser, but it was a 5 furlong dash and my jaw dropped as it came through to win giving me a loss of 7.6 points and wiping out the past days good profits of 7 points! Urgh!

So, in my experience an average of 1% per day is not easy to maintain.

On the other hand, if you already think it is hard to average 1% profit every day, take a look at our reviews and the systems that have been passed in previous reviews. The league table in each newsletter, while not guaranteeing continuing profit, (see Soccer Overs, currently struggling to make a profit after an 84 day profitable review) the table gives an idea of the profit per day as a %age of the starting bank.

You could do worse than pick and follow those that are consistently averaging over 1% per day. Of the current reviews that have been running for a few weeks, Champion Draws and Soccer Magic are averaging 2.47% and 1.31% profit per day. Betfair Success Formula and Sports Betting Dynamics have not been reviewed long enough to inspire confidence yet.

If you look at the Profitability Graph you can see how much they are going up and down each week. The most interesting one is perhaps Flat Ratings Pro. Currently it is averaging just under 1% profit per day, but it is so far, remarkably consistent. And has just the sort of profile graph that we are looking for, ie going up regularly by a fairly regular amount. It will be interesting to see how it goes in the remaining 40 odd days of the review.

Looking at the table of previous passed reviews (also shown above) we have the following that all averaged over 1% profit per day during the review: Golden Key Method 2, Soccer Overs, All By The Book, Favourites Phenomenon, and Betfair ATM.

Read the reviews and decide if any of these suit you psychologically. That is can you see yourself sticking rigidly to any of them to achieve regular profit. One problem we can see with Tipping Services is that as they have the human element of the tipster combined with the vagaries of betting, it is perhaps uncertain that the success rate will continue. Soccer Overs is currently going through a bad phase, but may still average out at the desired 67% success rate over time. Can you psychologically take the losing runs that tipping services can go through?

Other services are mathematical or requiring your skill and judgment in applying them. Golden Key, All By The Book and Betfair ATM fall into this category. Do you think they would suit you?

Read the reviews in full and get a feel for how the reviewer felt about the service during the review period. Imagine yourself being the reviewer and betting each day on that system. Would it suit you? Could you take the losing runs or the consecutive days of little progress?

So averaging 1% profit per day is hard and needs discipline. Many punters set their ambition unrealistically high, wanting to make 25% or more profit every day and getting disappointed when they don't. They hop from one idea to another while their betting bank consistently goes down over time, needing regular replenishment.

Anyway, what is so great about 1% per day? Surely that is nowhere near enough to warrant spending time on it?

How much do banks currently pay on "high" interest accounts? Last time I looked you struggled to get 5% per annum. I think it is even lower nowadays.

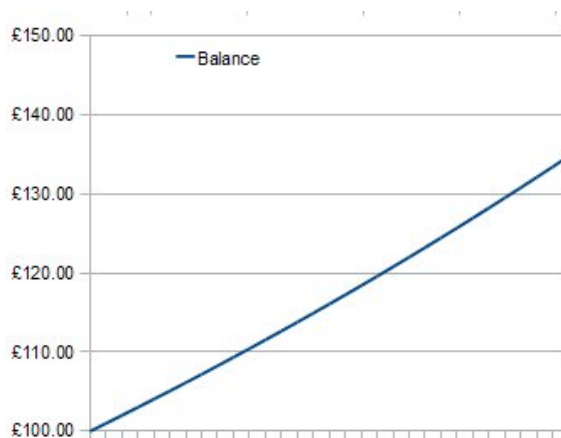

So, suppose you can average 1% profit per day. What would that do? How would it compare to a high street bank? Many of you are probably familiar with the concept of "compounding", but here is a reminder.

Suppose you start with a betting bank of £100 and each day you aim to make 1% profit, re-investing the winnings into the bank and aiming for 1% of the new bank the next day. This is called "compounding".

At first the gain is painfully slow (do you have the discipline to stick at it?). But fairly shortly the bank starts to grow considerably.

Here's what happens to your £100 after a month – it's grown by over 34%:

Day	Balance	Day	Balance
	£100.00	16	£117.26
1	£101.00	17	£118.43
2	£102.01	18	£119.61

Betting System Truths Weekly Newsletter © Enigma Media 2011

You might say: “Big deal! £34 profit.” But, yes it is a big deal! Look what happens if you carry on compounding the bank at 1% per day for a year:

Month	Balance
	£100
1	£135
2	£182
3	£245
4	£330
5	£445
6	£600
7	£808
8	£1,089
9	£1,468
10	£1,979
11	£2,667
12	£3,595

And after a second year:

Month	Balance
	£3,595
1	£4,846
2	£6,532
3	£8,804
4	£11,867
5	£15,995
6	£21,559
7	£29,058
8	£39,165
9	£52,787
10	£71,147
11	£95,892
12	£129,244

Yikes! Suddenly we have enough to live on! Two years of disciplined success and our £100 has become £129,244! Cream off half of it (£65k) to enjoy a nice lifestyle and you are back down that ladder of profit to around about month 10 of year 2 and in another couple of months you have over £120K again!

Of course, that is theoretical, in practice, you probably couldn't do your wagering at the level where your 1% is £700 (month 10, year 2) – the markets you are using probably couldn't take that level of staking. In reality you probably would take off your profit at around the month #14 mark, taking £60 (1% of £6K) profit each day. That would be an annual income of £21.5K

All from a £100 start and a few months of disciplined wagering! I don't know about you, but that inspires me to be more disciplined!

Currently, I use Golden Key Method, Pro Betfair Trading (currently being reviewed on Lay The Odds website), and the 9 Minute System. I know from my own betting that if I stick to them I can fairly easily make an average 1% profit per day.

What I have to do now, is assign a strictly ring-fenced bank to them that is never used for anything else and work at achieving that 1% each day, on average.

I'm going to assign a smaller, fun money, bank, separate from that, for any testing and speculation of things that might work. If that bank loses, so be it, but meanwhile I hope to watch that ring-fenced bank grow for a 12 or 14 months!

Next Week & Signing Off

This is Sgt Rich signing off and I hope that you have found some of the content within this newsletter to be useful. Remember to look out for the next BST newsletter in your e-mails on February 23rd. Until then, here's to successful punting.

Regards
