INTRODUCTION

Hi Folks,

It's still a bit quiet on Betting System Truths, but LayTheOdds has three new reviews starting this week. So I thought this was a good time to start incorporating the best of the LayTheOdds reviews into our newsletter. So from now on, the BST newsletter will include even more product reviews! In the Current Reviews section, the LayTheOdds reviews are in violet to help differentiate them

The results, league table and profitability graph include Monday evening reports, making the newsletter as up to date as possible when you receive the newsletter on the Wednesday morning.

Turf Wars has got back to winning ways! You can get your FREE 5-day trial of it here....

Bonus Bagging, from LayTheOdds has shown great profit in the two weeks of the review.

We'd like to hear from you, please contact me by e-mail via the Bloggers Corner at rich@bettingssystemtruths.com

Tips For Betting – Introduction

23rd June 2011

Tips For Betting

Inspector Tony-Introduces Tips For Betting

Hi Bloggers,

My name is Tony and my main betting interest is in laying horses. I do back horses and bet on other sports (backing and laying), but my special interest is in laying. I run my own sales and marketing consulting business and am also a scuba diving instructor. I manage to combine my passion with my work, by providing sales and marketing services to the scuba diving industry (amongst many other industry sectors). This means that I get to spend a lot of time abroad in the sun, doing what I love – not a bad 'job' really! I have a keen interest in tennis as my partner is a tennis coach, so she ensures that we get to watch lots of tennis on the TV and even get to the occasional tournament in the UK and abroad.

The Background

Tips For Betting is a tennis backing system – but you would never guess that from the name! The guys behind Tips For Betting are an international group of backers, who specialise in tennis matches from both the ATP (men) and the WTA (women) circuits. They currently have 7 members from 4 countries and keep a close eye on the latest tennis news, whilst also watching as many live matches as possible. They say that they all place bets themselves, so they like to stay informed (as information is the most important element in tennis betting). Some of them even travel around the World watching tournaments (mainly European and American ones). They stay in touch with each other and discuss the possible selections every day during the tennis season.

The System

They provide subscribers to Tips For Betting with selections for both ATP (Men) and WTA (Women) tennis matches. They claim to have been offering their services since autumn 2006 and claim an overall yield in excess of 15%. The website www.tips-for-betting.com has a section where all of the prior years' results are archived. Their service is verified by independent authorities Sports-Tipsters, Secret Betting Club and MyBigPartner. The selections are sent every day via email and SMS text. You can also check their website for all the latest selection results. The overall statistics, including the yield, volume of bets, net profit etc. are published and regularly updated on the website. The service has a limited form of guarantee – see the pricing section for details.

The information sent each day contains the following details:

- Name of the tournament.
- The chosen match.
- The player they predict will win the match.
- The recommended bookie.
- The number of points that they suggest to place on the bet. They ask that you follow their recommendations closely in order to ensure the best possible ROI.
- The picks are supplemented by detailed analyses – although I have not seen any evidence of that so far.

They like to take into account late news, injuries reports etc. but on the other hand, they also have to give you enough time to place the bets! Their picks are usually sent out at least 2 hours before the match starts, but in most cases, all the picks are available several hours in advance – depending when the appropriate prices are published by the bookies. They also may have to wait for the liquidity to be high enough so that the odds do not drop drastically.

They recommend Pinnaclesports as the most suitable bookmaker for the vast majority of their picks and also recommend 5dimes for handicap betting in tennis. Occasionally, they also use Expekt, Centrebet or Unibet.

You can obviously use any bookmaker that you wish, but their results will be reported on the basis of the bookmaker and the odds that they send out with their selections.

The Costs

They have 4 membership period options:

1 WEEK – 15 Euros (Approximately £13)

1 MONTH – 50 Euros (Approximately £45)

3 MONTHS – 130 Euros (Approximately £116) – If you are not in profit after the three months period, they will automatically extend your subscription period by another three months for free.

1 YEAR – 500 Euros (Approximately £450) – If you are not in profit after one year, they will refund your subscription fees

They do not offer refunds under normal circumstances. However, if there is a long losing streak, they say that they will "consider all options in order to make it easier for you" (whatever that means?). Instead of refunds, they say that they will consider different kinds of promotions. As stated above, the 3 month and one year options do have guarantees of sorts.

Staking

Staking for Tips For Betting obviously depends on the individual's approach to risk. In general they say that 10 units represent 1% of their betting bank. With their staking plan they usually recommend using from 1 to 10 units per bet, but usually stake from 1 to 6 units per bet. For the purpose of this review I will follow their recommendations to the letter and use the stakes that they recommend. I will start with a bank of 1,000 points (they suggest that 10 points = 1% of the bank, so 1,000 points seems reasonable. We will not actually use any money in the results, but just the points won or lost, so there will be no 'level stakes' as such. As with all our reviews, this review will initially last for 56 'betting days' (i.e. days where there are some selections), with the option to extend to 84 'betting' days, depending upon the results of the initial period.

The review will commence on Monday 20th June – the first day of the Wimbledon tournament and will be updated for each day that we receive selections.

Expected Winners -Introduction

25th June 2011

Inspector John-Introduces Expected Winners

Hi all,

Inspector John here with my first review for Lay The Odds. Firstly a little about myself... I have been interested and involved in sport since I was a young lad, both in participation and organisation. I have a background in sports administration, being a sports photo journalist and sports publisher during the 1980s and 1990s, then retired early seven years ago to concentrate on my interest in horseracing and the various schemes to make money from the sport, also devising and implementing numerous betting systems in many sports for my own use. It always makes me laugh when people ask me what I do for a living and the reply is: Sports arbitrage trader. They rarely end the conversation there! I sincerely hope I can provide a useful input here to what is already a valuable service.

Expected Winners is provided by Adrian Davis, an ex-jockey, who has been running the Expected Winners service since 1964 and has a number of testimonials on his website. This is a daily service which provides several win and lay bets via email around midday (bets can total over 30 daily). It also has a premium line telephone service.

The cost is £100 a month, which seems a trifle high, but if the Expected Winners service can keep going for 47 years it surely has to consistently return profits for investors.

Expected Winners covers all UK horseracing, for backing, laying and forecasts, plus a greyhound service and all horseracing bets can be placed when received. It also includes advice on where to place bets at the best prices.

The initial review of Expected Winners will last for 56 betting days with the option to extend to 84 betting days. Days without any bets will not be counted.

The staking plan for all our reviews is always a level stake of one point, and we also follow any recommended plans as well. You must bear in mind that most days there can be a considerable outlay if you decide to use all the selections. For this review I shall be looking at investing on every selection and reporting on the success or otherwise of each category (of which there are many). I believe breaking down each section could give a clearer indication of performance sooner than lumping it altogether.

It is my intention to use the following betting banks:

CAT 1 Main Investments (4 X 100 pt Banks) Back bets, Lay bets, E/W bets, and a Nap selection.

CAT 2 Greyhounds (2 x100 pt Banks) Back bets and Lay bets

CAT 3 100 pt Bank These are the additional bets provided by Adrian for subscribers

Cat 4 100 pt Bank For the major meetings Adrian puts up selections each day.

I am hoping to start the review sometime over the weekend, so watch out for the first one! Best Regards, Inspector John

Pro Betfair Trading – Introduction

24th June 2011

Inspector Rich-Introduces Pro Betfair Trading

“Inspector” Rich here, making my debut as an LTO reviewer. I have been interested in punting for three decades now and been using the personal computer with varying success since the original Amstrad PCs. My main interest is in the statistics and mathematics of punting and particularly, these days, in trading strategies. Currently I am the editor and compiler of the LTO and BST newsletters as well as a reviewer on BST.

Pro Betfair Trading has already had two trials begun and for various reasons they have not been completed. Let’s hope that this time it is third time lucky!

This strategy comes from the Steve Davidson stable and is developed by “Michael and Alfred”. The sales page and pdf manual show some screen shots of huge trades carried out by Michael and Alfred with similarly huge profits. It makes good copy, but mere mortals like ourselves will doubtless trade more conservatively.

Michael is the same developer of the Place Lay Formula which got passed with 4.5 stars by our review manager Dave on BettingSystemTruths. So any strategies from Michael deserves serious consideration. The Pro Betfair Trading strategy uses UK horse racing and involves looking for a certain pattern of odds before the off. You look for a “perfect set up” using the standard Betfair interface – you don’t need any special bot or trading interface to do this. All the info is presented on Betfair’s site.

Without giving details away, you initially lay the selected horse when it shows the “perfect set up” pattern and then back it at, hopefully, higher odds. It seems to me the time scale of when you place the lay and back bets is crucial and you need to look very carefully at the manual to work out your timing. The manual claims that with this “perfect set up” 70% to 80% of your trades will be profitable and 20% to 30% of your trades will be at a loss. It is vital to accept these losses when they occur and trade-out, otherwise, if you hope for a turnaround, you are simply gambling and not trading.

A second, very different, strategy is given in the manual when there are two horses competing for favouritism. In my opinion this is a much riskier strategy, although the example in the manual makes it look easy. I would advise great caution in using this second strategy. However it is not the main strategy, so unless I see a real risk-free situation I don't intend to use the dual favourites system during the review.

It is worth noting that Pro Betfair Trading does not involve any form study or statistics. It is purely determined by the movement of the odds. You do need to monitor races as they occur for a ten minute period before the off time and there is no realistic way to anticipate in advance which races may be candidate races. Therefore I think it is only suitable for those who can be in front of their computer during racing. During the review I'll try to indicate when races are evening or weekend races for those of you who cannot monitor weekday racing.

Before I started this review, it was considered as to whether a betting bot could be used to spot the "perfect set ups" but I don't know of one that can spot the required changes of odds, over the period from when the markets are formed. The manual states that after the lay, you place your back bet at the same stakes. Following this you hedge the bet so that you make the same profit whatever the outcome. The manual shows you how to do this and how to calculate the hedging bet. So you can do all this from the Betfair interface, but be warned by the time you get to hedging, you may be just a minute or less before the off, so you need to move fast.

Personally I will be using my usual Betfair trading software. This works out the back bet so that the bets are hedged automatically. So rather than two steps, as shown in the manual, it is all done in one step with your back stakes automatically worked out. This saves quite a lot of time and automatically adjusts as the odds adjust. Other interfaces such as GreyHorse bot will also perform this "greening of the screen" for you.

I think the main problem with this and other trading strategies is that having purchased it and seen how "easy" it is to make profit, the temptation is to alter the strategy, because you may think you have sussed an opportunity to extend or widen the scope presented in the strategy. In actual fact the limits presented in the strategy are quite narrow and have obviously been chosen to present a profit over time. Altering the strategy off into new ideas is tempting but it is no guarantee of success. If your altered strategy fails – you may dismiss the sold strategy as unprofitable!

With this Pro Betfair Trading strategy, you have to look at every race ten minutes before the off. Do you have the discipline to reject most of the races during the day? Or would you be tempted to adapt the rules of the strategy to cover more races? The problem, as I see it, is that you could be spending a lot of time at the computer screen with bets few and far between. I think it is human nature to be tempted into having a punt by altering the rules of the strategy.

Fortunately, for me, as well as being disciplined by the fact I am reviewing for LTO, I also already watch races while applying my other trading strategies, so if a race doesn't fit the Pro Betfair Trading requirements, I can happily let the race go as regards Pro Betfair Trading.

I have to say that I am not as optimistic as some people about the potential of Pro Betfair Trading. I think the spotting of the "perfect set up" is not as cut and dried as the manual makes out. I understand the theory of why the odds will be likely to move a certain way, but I remain to be convinced that this will work out in practice. I think a fair degree of skill and even luck might be involved in judging when a "perfect set up" is achieved. It is advisable to "paper-trade" while this skill is learned.

The manual advises "risking 5%" of your Betfair account on each race starting with a bank of 500 points. Unfortunately, in the context of Pro Betfair Trading it is unclear what the definition of "risk" is exactly. The initial bet is a lay bet so is the "risk" the initial stake or the liability? In view of the fact that every lay bet is matched by a back bet (usually for a profit) and the full lay liability is never left exposed at the time of the race start – I'm going to take it to mean that the initial lay stake should be 5% of the starting bank. If I took it to mean the lay liability, then at odds of maybe 4.0 or 5.0, the traded profit would be awfully small.

The manual also advises waiting until the bank has doubled before increasing the stakes, so for this review I will stick to flat stakes of 5% of the starting bank until such time as the bank doubles. It would make more sense to increase stakes as the bank increases, keeping it at 5% of the current balance but that is not what the manual says to do. At the end of the review, I will try to set my spreadsheet to calculate the effect of using such a "ratchet" staking plan, instead of flat level stakes. So anyway, during this review I will have a starting bank of 500 points and level stakes of 25 points (5%) until the bank reaches 1,000 points.

Pro Betfair Trading costs £69.99 and for this you get the PDF describing the strategy in full and two training videos.

Regards, Inspector Rich

League Table of Current Reviews

The systems under review have different starting banks, different stakes and some systems have variable stakes. A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank. Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit as %age of bank is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, I think it is a valid at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

I've colour coded the reviews that are the currently most successful, with the colour of their profitability graph to make them easier to spot.

Sprint Lay Expert and Turf Wars are firmly lodged at the top. Bonus Bagging, from LayTheOdds has shot into 5th place.

Profitability Graph

Here is a graph of the profit being made by the front-runners as a percentage of their starting bank. This gives a week by week comparative view of their progress.

It gives a representation of the volatility or dependability of each system. Ideally we would want a graph that increased each week by roughly the same amount. If a system or tipping service could produce that, then we would really have a winning review!

Turf Wars has gone back up and Sprint Lay Expert has maintained its profit. Bonus Bagging after two weeks, is doing well.

Admin, Gordon has requested suggestions from readers for Systems, Strategies and Tipping Services they would like to see reviewed. Just send the suggestions to me, at my usual address, rich@bettingssystemtruths.com and I'll pass them on to him.

One of our readers, Gerald, has asked if we are going to review "The Winning Approach" – Thanks for the suggestion, Gerald – Gordon is now looking at it to see if we are going to review it.
