INTRODUCTION

Hi Folks,

This week we have one Final Review and one New Review.

Those of you who have been following Tommy's review of the ABSX System will know how well he has been doing applying the techniques to his own system. Sgt Tommy now wraps up his review with a pass rating of  - 4.5 stars out of 5!

It's not often any of our reviews get such a high ranking – so head over to Tommy's Final Review to find out why ABSX is so highly rated.

Our New Review is unusual this week as three reviewers are taking a look at different parts of the same product – Total Football Trading.

As regards our Current Reviews, ExBookie has continued to do very well this week. It will be interesting to see if its success can be maintained. The Betplan continues to make a good profit. Assured Soccer Profits has moved into the top ten.

We'd like to hear from you, please contact me by e-mail via the Bloggers Corner at rich@bettingssystemtruths.com

We have three new reviews starting this week. They all come from the same product Total Football Trading, which consists of 10 trading strategies and between the three of us we will be reviewing five of the strategies.

Review Manager Rich Introduces Total Football Trading

Three of us are going to review 5 different trading strategies in the Total Football Trading package. But firstly, I thought I'd give an overall description of what you get.

Total Football Trading weighs in at four hefty pdf files (a total of 11.5MB). It currently costs $77 and for this you get ten different football trading strategies. We will be reviewing five of them, which isn't to say the others are not worth using, just that the five we are reviewing are the most suitable for a review.

Here's a brief extract from the sales site: "The Total Football Trading package has been created by professional traders who make a substantial amount every week from trading football on Betfair! We have created a product which means you simply don't need to buy any other systems. Hence the name, TOTAL Football Trading ! This is totally everything you need to trade football. This isn't just one system on its own, this is a whole portfolio of different strategies and systems. With this you can trade any sort of football match and make a profit!"

The first pdf is a general description of football trading. It does assume you know about trading and "greening up" – if you don't then you will need to do some introductory reading. The authors emphasize that you should not skip reading this first manual, otherwise your application of the later strategies might well fail.

There is a lot of material in the first book about the correct mentality needed to be a successful trader – don't skip it!

The other three manuals contain the ten strategies. Each strategy is described in detail as to trading entry points, exit points and likely success rate. Match selection is perhaps a little less detailed, but I believe a careful read of each strategy should lead you to the right decisions. Each strategy then has several real examples with screen shots of the trades, these help you to understand the strategy.

The information is very well presented, but there is a lot of information to take in and I strongly advise you to take it steadily, or else your brain may explode (!) and you will be uncertain when you actually start trading! It's probably best to just take one, two or three of the strategies and concentrate on them, rather than trying to do more. So there are probably a total of several months of comprehension and testing of the material that you buy.

There are pre-kick-off strategies and in-play strategies. Obviously, during the trading period, whether it be before kick-off or in-play, you do need to be able to watch the Betfair (or BetDAQ) markets. So you will need to be professional about what you do and not allow yourself to be sidetracked.

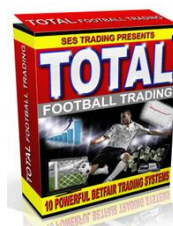

When reviewing trading strategies, it is not possible to say that any other user would have the same success or failure that our reviewers have, as individuals will make different decisions at different times. Nevertheless it is our aim to describe our experience of using the strategies and to give an idea of what you might expect if you decide to try them.

Each review will run for at least 8 weeks and we will let you know how often we do an analysis but don't find any bets. This should be plenty of time for us reviewers to get used to the strategies and for you to get an idea as to whether these strategies are for you.

Now on to each review...

Sgt Colin introduces Total Football Trading The Paper Chaser

I will be reviewing The Total Football Trading The Paper Chaser strategy in this review. Obviously it is not possible to give too much information about a strategy to those who have not bought it yet, but this is a midweek “pre-kick-off” trading system. You will need access to the exchanges at regular points during the day to run the system. It only works with midweek football matches – so you (I) get the weekends off.

The system will concentrate on major soccer where there is plenty of liquidity in the market (the manual looks for £25,000 or more traded). The system uses stop losses to control risk.

I will start of with a betting bank of 1,000 points. I will be staking 100 points on each trade, before using my exit strategy, which will be limiting the risk to below 1% – much less than the risk advised in the first of the Total Football Trading manuals. I will assess whether this is enough to make a worthwhile return.

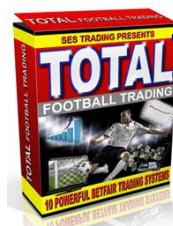

I will be following the system as closely as possible, concentrating on trying to assess whether the strategy has validity, whether it requires a high degree of skill to be successful, and whether the likely returns justify the time and effort required. The system recommends the use of manual stop losses, although I will also look at whether using a bot can help or hinder the implementation.

I'll start reviewing on 3rd October, but there will be days when I can't operate the system due to other time commitments.

Review Manager Rich Introduces Total Football Trading The Underdog

So on to the actual reviews. I will be reviewing The Total Football Trading The Underdog strategy in this review. Obviously it is not possible to give too much information about a strategy to those who have not bought it yet, but you don't have to be Einstein to realise this is a trading strategy involving unfancied teams!

Discover

I will make one adjustment to The Total Football Trading The Underdog strategy as outlined – I will set selection odds at 1.75 rather than the advised 2.0. The publishers SES, have advised me I could tighten it up to 1.75. If you buy the strategies, you will understand what I am referring to.

I will concentrate on major soccer where there is plenty of liquidity in the market (say £5,000 or more traded)

I will start of with a betting bank of 1,000 points and so my Lay stakes will be 25 points. I will be risking a maximum of about 37 points on the trade, before using my exit strategy. So I will be risking about 3.7% of my start bank on each trade – which is in line with the risk advised in the first of the Total Football Trading manuals.

Sgt Magnifique Introduces Total Football Trading Gold, Silver and LTD

Magnifique is going to review 3 strategies.

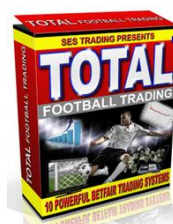

An old friend of all soccer traders, Lay the Draw. Though most of you are aware of the concept behind this type of trading, there's something in the book you might have never thought of (particularly one little filter, that to be honest has never occurred to me). So it is something worth looking at and trying out.

The other two strategies are called Golden Goal and Silver Goal. These are based on the same ground and are in fact more of straight laying than trading. The main difference between them is in games they could be used on and the circumstances to look at. The idea behind the strategies makes perfect sense, but we will see if they actually work in practice during the trial.

I'll be concentrating on top leagues with high liquidity as they fit the strategies best of all.

ABSX System X-IV – Final Review

Sgt Tommy reviews ABSX System X-IV

PASSED AND APPROVED

Rating: ★★★★★

ABSX System X-IV...the product?

The ABSX System is a suite of tools and software designed to enhance your betting experience by giving you a wide range of strategies and methods for pinpointing which horses and races to target for maximum profit. The cost of the complete package is 83.75GBP (incl VAT) as a one off payment.

It includes many instructive videos and pdf files on several different topics including;

1. The Irish racing year.
2. ABSX basic method instructions
3. ABSX win methods
4. The Quad Sequencer
5. Target driven cross method staking
6. Staking and bank ratios
7. Group Betting

... and many more.

In this review I have concentrated on 2 pieces of software included in the ABSX System.

1. The Profit Monitor – This software responds to instructions based on factors such as flow of money, live betting market, value and profitability of the race. It gives indications throughout the day of which type of bet would be most suitable to apply to each race. For this trial I was limited to 2 horse 'dutch' bets and win only bets.

I know for a fact though that this software will soon change to include several different recommended bets from group bets to 'place' bets on 2nd fav, etc.

2. The 'Machine' This is for me the 'heart and soul' of the ABSX-IV package as it contains much of the vital information required when preparing your betting day. This includes the historical percentage of winning and 2nd favs and joint favs in handicaps and non-handicaps and overall winning percentage for all favs in a particular race. It then breaks this information up into various colour codes representing the strength of each particular race in question. This software formed the basis of my own 'methodology' which I shall discuss below.

The Experimental strategy...

Hang on minute I hear you cry, you lost your initial betting bank plus the banks for 3% and 5% a day attempts, and you're giving ABSX System a 'passed and approved' moniker!

Well that's right because as you can see from the subtitle, this particular part of the review was purely experimental, and did not have any real relevance towards the use of this particular product. I only used these strategies to report all the results in some kind of tabular form as below.

race strength	no selections	of	wins	losses	P/L
	268		142	122	-29.67
	204		114	90	-4.83
	367		228	138	+104.13
	175		104	70	-143.77
	57		31	26	-107.66

So, what did we learn from this table?

Well as you can see after the 'experimental' 84 day period, the only positive is the figure for the 'blue' selections at a whopping +104.13pts, based on betting 6% of the betting bank on all selections given. Again a purely experimental staking strategy on my part. The other results were not so hot as you can see, but as I have stressed from the 'get go', absolutely no one in their right mind should be betting on every recommendation given by the 'profit monitor'.

The 'profit monitor' is a tool to be used as part of the complete ABSX-IV package, and in conjunction with another tool, 'the machine', to form various betting methods and strategies along with your very own personal betting style.

Incidentally, the interesting thing about the 'blue' bets is that even more profit could have been had if betting only in fields of runners of 10 or more. I think we had around +128pts on that score and that is just with the 'dutch' bets also.

So take from these results what you will. You could well form a nice little strategy on just the 'blue' bets alone. I will certainly be following the progress of these particular bets over the next few weeks myself.

My own 'Methodology'.....

The results.....

Starting bank = 100pts

Finishing bank = +165.23pts after 84 days.

P/L = +65.23pts

Using the 'machine' as my starting point every day and after analysing all results since Feb 21st, I set about a staking strategy of making just 0.30% of my betting bank per successful bet. This involved a series of sequential bets on both 'dutch' and 'place' selections with the following criteria:

'Place bets'

1. List all races with 9 or less runners.
2. Using the 'machine', select only those races with winning favs at 40% or greater.
3. These were normally only 'blue', 'green' and 'purple' races.
4. For 'place' bets I would normally need at least 4 qualifiers at 1.30 or above to place.
5. Use the 'quad sequencer' contained in the ABSX-IV package and stop at a win.

'Dutch' bets

1. Bet only in 9 runner races or less.
2. No RED races allowed.
3. Wait for a losing dutch of 9 runners or less and then begin sequential bet.
4. Stop at a win.

I added my own criteria to these basic steps such as course, distance, going, form, jockey, class and trainer form.

I found the 'machine' to be invaluable using this methodology as it saved so much time when analyzing the races.

The other very important point for me was to be happy with picking up a small profit each day. This absolutely suited my style of betting to a tee.

My biggest bet in 84 days was 6.2% of my bank to complete a winning sequence, and my average bet was between 1% and 2% of my bank. Very safe and secure!

Everyone has their own particular style of betting, and with this product it is possible to have various styles of betting and staking plans simply because there are numerous win methods and strategies to choose from.

For example I haven't even mentioned the fact of placing the 2nd fav when there is a recommended 'win only' bet. I know from the results that there have been 6,7 or even 8 consecutive winning place bets such as these, not to mention the huge number of placed 1st and 2nd favs coming from the recommended 'dutch' selections.

In fact on the 25th of April we had 8 consecutively placed 1st favs in total out of 12 favs placed for the day! I have seen numerous instances where we've had 4 or 5 consecutive 1st or 2nd favs placing. Another possible strategy for you!

What is also very encouraging about this product is that the author is certainly not 'resting on his laurels'. He is in the process as I mentioned before of updating the profit monitor to include many of these strategies such as group betting, (1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and even 5th favs as a dutch bet), place betting on the 1st or 2nd fav, and other 'bells and whistles' not yet determined at this stage!

Added to all this is the personal help and support you receive from Grey and his support team, as well as a very loyal band of members who frequent the ABSX forum on a regular basis and are only too willing to help any struggling 'newbies' having just purchased the product.

So to sum up, I have no hesitation whatsoever in recommending this product to any member of the betting fraternity out there who is looking for a very steady income builder. If you have patience and a professional attitude to the 'Sport of Kings', then you will have success with ABSX System-IV. FACT!

All the best, Sgt Tommy.

League Table of Current Reviews

Return to Contents/Index of this newsletter

A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank. Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit as %age of bank is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, it is a valid at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

I've colour coded the reviews that are the currently most successful, with the colour of their profitability graph to make them easier to spot.

ExBookie has continued to do very well this week. It will be interesting to see if its success can be maintained. The Betplan continues to make a good profit. Assured Soccer Profits has moved into the top ten.

Profitability Graph

Here is a graph of the profit being made by the front-runners as a percentage of their starting bank. This gives a week by week comparative view of their progress.

It gives a representation of the volatility or dependability of each system. Ideally we would want a graph that increased each week by roughly the same amount. If a system or tipping service could produce that, then we would really have a winning review!

I'm only including those that are currently making over 20% profit. ABSX Tommy's Method has come to the end of the review now (Final Review this week) and above all others (apart from Bonus Bagging) this has shown the most consistent, steady improvement. I've left it on this week's graph, for you to see. It's the bright, light-green graph. It's not the highest performer, but the profit is steady and obviously scalable.

We've had this contribution from Simon. Has anybody else had any experience of Paul Coleman?

Could you add the name Paul Coleman to your list of scam merchants ? - if he is not already there that is to say.

He was offering membership to the 'Daily Cash Private Syndicate' last week, which, as it was cheap (£27 pcm) and offered cashback 30 day guarantee, I went and joined (okay call me an idiot). Anyhow upon receiving his envelope and gen, I rang his number and got his selections for about three days, before I noticed the problem - he just selected one 'meet' then picked the Racing post favourite in the subsequent five or six races at that particular meet for the day, so where was the delving for value or for any cleverly uncovered certs using his 'two decades in the perfecting system' as foamed about in his E-mails ?

Anyone could do what he does - pick the Racing post favourites from any particular days meet - and pass them off as ingeniously discovered hidden winners - but they won't deliver the 80% strike rate his E-mail blurb enthuses about, no, more like 20%. I had a sinking feeling when I opened his letter with the gen anyway as it was going on about how they suffer losing runs and not to give up after a week, cause it'd take 3 months to see any sort of profit - hang about Mister Coleman, if it doesn't return 80% in a week, then it is hardly likely to do any different in 12 weeks, you mean after the punter has paid for 3 months of your service and found he has been done should he then give up, you mean.

Anyhow the only positive thing to say was that there was a 30 day trial money back guarantee, and paypal sent me an E-mail upon applying for refund or was it opening a dispute? to say that the monies (£27) were to be refunded within 5 working days, but what a waste of time, energy, hope etc, he probably thinks he is being clever, and perhaps he has made some money out of clods who don't realize what his game is, people like him are too pathetic for words really, but anyway thought he would be best named and shamed.

Yours Simon.

PS : Please Keep up the good work, your weekly magazine is one of the few things worth reading in my or anybody's in-box.
