Fold4Gold – Introduction

19 May 2012

Sgt Jon Introduces Fold4Gold

Hi Bloggers

Another new review about to start from the Betfan stable. Sometimes I find reviewing systems and tipsters can become a little tedious with unexciting selections, short prices and little about them to get the adrenaline flowing. That's why I was pleased to get this opportunity to review Fold4Gold – a brand new tipping service from Betfan that's designed to be Great FUN but with very serious financial intentions in mind.

The sales website says the mission is to use some of the best minds in the sports betting business to supply members with bets that may be speculative in the main but when they land, the profits can be immense – potentially landing massive Jackpot payouts.

Most of the Fold4Gold bets will be speculative but very profitable when they hit the target. The focus is on a wide spectrum of sports from horse racing to football and many more and uses a whole host of speciality bets. There will be Yankee's, Accumulators, Cross Doubles, 3, 4, 5 Folds, Lucky 15's and Scoop6 selections on Saturdays.

The Fold4Gold philosophy is low stakes for maximum profit and whilst the strike rate can be low, one winning day can make enough profit for the year! This is borne out by the "Top 10" results on the Betfan site where Fold4Gold sits in first place for last month, the last three months and the last six months which shows a profit gain of 754 points!

Tips are sent by email but are also available on a members web page and will clearly explain the type of bet being recommended. Remember, you'll be getting some massive accumulator bets that can turn small stakes into phenomenal profits if successful.

A starting bank of between 500 to 1,000 points is recommended and all bets will be kept to 10 points or less. Each tip will include the recommended stake and best price available at the time the tips are emailed to you.

As their website says, by all means follow your favourite advisor for long term profits but if you're looking for some added fun, entertainment and potential massive wins then Fold4Gold might just be what you are looking for.

Fold4Gold is available for a monthly subscription of £19.99 and the review will start on Monday 21st May.

I shall review this for 56 days with the option to extend it to 84 betting days.

Little Acorns Introduction

17 May 2012

Sergeant John Introducing Little Acorns

This week we start a new review of Little Acorns, a low-liability laying formula that has been around for five years. It is entirely appropriate to review it again now as services being active for this period of time have chance to engage in fine tuning, with a tweak or two thrown in, to develop it to the present day.

It was Geoffrey Chaucer who first quoted "mighty oaks from little acorns grow" and as the name suggests, Little Acorns uses low stakes to grow bigger banks and be in the position of being confident to increase your stakes as the bank increases.

The system has been developed by Andrew David, who is confident that your betting balance will increase between seven and 35 times each month, without exposing yourself to high liabilities.

It is on offer for £97 ($147 when you click to pay, which could be subject to a price difference in UK£ due to exchange rates), but he does offer a 30-day "No Questions Asked – Iron Clad Money Back Guarantee." Ironclad (which is one word) does sound a shade Victorian but what we are saying here is that it is an unbreakable contract. Good to know.

Little Acorns incorporates a vital selection filter which enables you to all but completely cut out your potential losses. I am looking forward to studying that feature.

Selections do not take more than ten minutes a day to compile once you have gained some experience using the formula and you do not need to be in front of your computer during live racing, that is if you choose to bet at weekends or in the evening, other than that you need to place bets five to ten minutes before the race time.

The formula offers three different types of staking plans: Plan A uses the Fibonacci sequence; Plan B Adds your loss to the next stake; Plan C uses Level Stakes. I shall start with a bank of 300 points and a two-point stake for each plan.

From the last 48 months, only four months have made a loss, so let us see how this one does in the next few months.

I shall review this for 56 days with the option to extend it to 84 betting days.

Best Regards

PAWS (Personal All Weather Selections) Introduction

13th May 2012

Sgt Chris Introduces PAWS (Personal All Weather Selections)

Hi Bloggers,

PAWS is a tipping service, coming from the Steve Davidson "stable" and the person responsible for the selections is called Allan Moore. The tips are send to customers every day via e-mail around 11 am, or you can grab them through the members area.

The subscription is £ 39.99 per month, and at least for the time being it's the only paying option.

As the title suggests, for those who are aware, the PAWS service deals with UK horse racing, and more specifically with the All Weather tracks, and covers win bets only, no laying horses involved.

So, what we actually get is a daily e-mail from the author, even when there are no selections. All the hard work is done for us, and the only thing left to do is to put our money on the advised horse(s). Most of the times, we place bets for win only, but on a few occasions there will be some e/w bets (both for win and place that is).

Now, apart from the time of the race and name of the horse, the author also informs us of the Bookies price available, at the time we receive the e-mail. It is vital to have an account with a bookie using BOG (Best Odds Guarantee). In simple words, BOG means that if we place a bet let's say early in the morning at 2/1 and the actual SP is higher, we get the higher SP. On the other hand, if the SP shortens less than 2/1 we still get the early price. Using Betfair SP is not ruled out, but until now calculating profits with BOG has proved more efficient.

All bets are placed on level stakes, and after contacting the author he suggested a 100 pts starting bank to feel comfortable with, and that's the size of the bank i'm going to use.

The initial review will last for 56 bettings days, but there's always the option to extend it to 84 betting days. Either way we have to be patient, because the amount of All Weather racing is decreased during the spring and the summer. So I suspect we won't be getting PAWS selections very often during this period of time, but as always it's the bigger picture we should care about.

Cheers

The Evening Value Service – Introduction

The Evening Value Service

Sgt Tony Introduces

The Evening Value Service

Hi All

This is the latest service from Kieran Ward. Here are his notes:

"I've been running The Evening Value Service for a small group of clients since November 2011 and I've attached a spreadsheet with all results on it (All selections have been live proofed since the very start to Geegeez.co.uk and Secret Betting Club). I hope you'll agree that the results have been impressive. Selections will be delivered to members via email along with additional access to a members site. I believe I've built up a great track record of customer service and that (along with profitability) is always my highest priority. Hopefully, this will ensure lots of happy, long-term customers

The cost will be £37 per month (with a £7 for first 14 days taster) or £97 for 3 months access which represents fantastic value."

Kieran recommends using Best Odds Guaranteed Bookmakers, where possible, which is what the profit is based on.

James and Kevin have been proofing the service for us since 1 May and it has made just under 40 points profit to level stakes in that period.

If you take a look you will see how The Evening Value Service works. As the name implies, it concentrates on evening meetings Monday to Saturday (no Sunday racing). Kieran's claim is that he can spot the value bets (where the bookies have over priced certain horses). He emails out around 10 selections a day, usually about 40 minutes before the evening racing begins. Once you have signed up, the website has a section for the latest selections, a comprehensive FAQ section and a spreadsheet showing all the results back to 16th November 2011. Since that date, up to 12th May, there have been 628 selections with 122 winners, giving a strike rate of 19.42% and a profit of 174.40 points at level stakes (a 27.77% return on turnover).

I am starting the review with effect from 1st June and will be using level stakes of £10 to represent 1 point.

Please let me know if you need any further information about the service and I look forward to testing it out on your behalf.

All the best, enjoy the long weekend

The Football Betting Winning Strategies – Introduction

29th May 2012

Sergeant Lucian – Introduces The Football Betting Winning Strategies

Hi Bloggers,

Here is a review of a new Winning Information Network service – The Football Betting Winning Strategies.

First I will let you know that you can register for free because this service is on trial period. So no price details now. The review will be updated with all details when the service is launched.

The Football Betting Winning Strategies service offer 2 strategies which mean two sections back and lay on football.

Strategy A – Back Bets comes with 3 staking plans and is about the buyer choice to select the one suitable for him.

Staking Plan 1 – NOTE I Will be proofing the bets using this particular staking plan 2pts on the first selection if this bet wins, the next selection will be bet with 4pts, if this wins, the next bet will be 8pts. After the third bet the stake returns to 2pts and we start the sequence again. If we have a losing bet at any time we return to staking 2pts on the next selection.

During proofing this plan has turned a profit of 80.76 Points

Staking Plan 2

This is the plan with least risk but less potential for returns 1pt on the first selection if this bet wins, the next selection will be bet with 2pts, if this wins, the next bet will be 3pts. After the third bet the stake returns to 1pt and we start the sequence again. If we have a losing bet at any time we return to staking 1pt on the next selection.

During proofing this plan has turned a profit of 33.44 Points

Staking Plan 3

This is the staking plan we use which we believe offers you potential for excellent returns. It is a compounding plan where you re calculate your Bank each day after betting.

2% of your Bank on the first selection if this bet wins, the next selection will be bet with 3% of your Bank, if this wins, the next bet will be 6% of your Bank. after the third bet the stake returns to 2% of your Bank and we start the sequence again. If we have a losing bet at any time we return to staking 2% of your Bank on the next selection.

During proofing this plan has turned a £500 starting bank into £917.62 giving a profit of £417.62.

Strategy B – Lay Bets

All Lay bets will be advised to WIN 1pt and proofed as same During proofing Lay Bets have made 97.93 Points Profit.

The initial review will be for 56 “betting days”, and may be extended to 84 “betting days”, depending on its performance.

Staking

Strategy A – Back Bets.

Staking Plan 1 – initial bank of 200 points and 2,4,8 sequence

Staking Plan 2 – initial bank of 100 points and 1,2,3 sequence

Staking Plan 3 – initial bank of 100 points and 2,3,6 % of bank sequence

Level Staking Plan – initial bank of 50 points and 1 point on bet

Strategy B – Lay Bets

Level Staking Plan – initial bank of 100 points and 1 point on lay bet

Thank you for your time and I hope you enjoy the review.

The Laying Game – Introduction

17 May 2012

Sergeant John Introducing The Laying Game

Looking at a new product from the Steve Davidson stable, The Laying Game is essentially a piece of software that picks out selections on a daily basis ready for you to lay on Betfair.

It really is a no-brainer. The software does all the work and is ready to use by 3am UK time. You can lay on the place or win market, but it is recommended to concentrate on the win market.

The strike rate averages around 70% but, although the software produces prices across the board, it is recommended to lay horses at under 5.01.

For the purposes of this review I shall have an opening bank of 500 points, using 1% of that as my stake (5 points). I have used a fairly large bank because there can be as many as ten selections a day.

You buy one licence for one computer for 12 months at £29.99 and there are no refunds. What happens after a year I have yet to find out, but no doubt Mr Davidson will have something up his sleeve and at that price, providing this review is successful, it is worth renewing for another year.

I shall review this for 56 days with the option to extend it to 84 betting days and, hopefully, be able to recommend The Laying Game software to readers soon after that.

Best Regards

Win Master Pro – Introduction

17 May 2012

Sergeant Jon Introduces Win Master Pro

Hi Bloggers

Sergeant Jon here checking back into BST as a reviewer. I last reviewed a betting system for BST six months ago but now my cyber buddy of nearly six years, James Fitzmaurice, has taken control of the site again, I was delighted to accept his invitation to get involved once more. Over the past six years I must have reviewed dozens of systems and tipsters, some good, some bad and some downright ugly!

Now, Win Master Pro is a bit different. As a reviewer, I have often spotted trends and tweaked rules and filters whilst carrying out reviews just to see what might happen and whether I can improve on the seller's results. This may have been the situation with BST's very own Tommy Halbert as well. Last year, Tommy reviewed the ABX-IV software which he awarded a very high 4.5 stars approval rating. But during his review, Tommy started to record his own variation on the system with excellent results.

As a result of this he has now created Win Master Pro in partnership with Grey Samuels, the author of ABX-IV. Win Master Pro is a backing system that has produced staggeringly good results over the last nine months. Tommy is about to release Win Master Pro in early June and requested that BST review the system applying our normal stringent and impartial procedures. I am privileged to have been asked to review Win Master Pro and having had a few days to practice with the selection and betting process will start the review from next Monday 21st May.

At present there is no flashy website promising instant wealth ;) nor has the release price been made public yet but Tommy assures me that there will be a website, access to the vital software required to operate the system, instructional videos and membership blog. It's important to confirm that this is a Dutching system (backing more than one horse in the race) where the software examines all racecards for the day in the UK and Ireland and identifies possible qualifying races.

During the day, the software continues to monitor these races and then advises whether a bet is recommended a few minutes before the "Off". At this point it is up to you to check certain criteria regarding Betfair prices to make sure they meet the system rules before placing the bet.

My initial thought here is that you will have to monitor live racing and that perhaps a bot could be used so those of us who cannot access live racing and Betfair during the day can use the system.

For the purpose of the review, however, I will record results using Betfair SP. Whilst this may not always reflect the best price available before the race start, at least it prevents debate about the available price for any particular race. Tommy also suggests that on longer distance races, in play betting may boost profits so it is likely that there will be profit and loss differences depending on what strategy you adopt.

The recommended bank is £500 with 10% stakes of the prevailing bank used to dutch back selections calculated to return an equal profit for winning bets. So, you will definitely need access to a good dutching calculator and this will also be used to check one of the price rules before placing the bet.

In the last three months, since mid February, Tommy has grown a £500 bank to £5,258 using 10% stakes which is not shabby by anyone's standards!

There is a recommended staking plan but the authors have requested this is not disclosed until the product launch. Therefore, for the review, I will simply record results to level stakes.

I shall review this for 56 days with the option to extend it to 84 betting days.

So, let's hope Tommy has discovered the Holy Grail for all of us and I am really looking forward to seeing how Win Master Pro performs over the next few months.

Cheers

Form Labs – Final Review Summary

08/05/2012

Rich Reviews Form Labs

Rating:

I won't repeat too much from the Intro – you can read it here:

<http://www.bettingsystemtruths.com/introduction/2012/02/12/form-labs-introduction/>

And a full software review is here:

<http://www.bettingsystemtruths.com/introduction/2011/11/15/form-labs-software-review/>

Briefly, this is a software database that uses past results to find bets for upcoming fixtures. I have run a test system for each of the three available versions of the software. Remember these are just example systems using the Form Labs software. You could develop whatever system you wanted.

The software is available in three versions:

For Form Labs Lite, I tested the “Game Notes” of the software – this led to one bet per match which I believe any user could also find. As a sub-test of this system, I also noted any 2.5 goal bets because these are reported historically to have shown a profit on the Form Labs sales page (Serie A Under 2.5 goals; La Liga Over & Under 2.5 goals; Premiership Over & Under 2.5 goals; Bundesliga Under 2.5 goals)

Form Labs Lite costs £25 a month or £225 for 12 months after your initial FREE 28 days.

For Form Labs Pro I tested one particular in-play query. There are an almost infinite number of possible queries you could ask the software database. The Pro version allows for in-play queries – no limit to your queries. In order to test a system that you, the reader, can replicate, I tested a half-time query, where I entered the half-time match situation and chose as my bet, a “value” bet that is indicated, given the half-time situation. So I called this strategy “Half-time in-play query”.

Form Labs Pro costs £45 a month or £395 for 12 months after your initial FREE 28 days.

For Form Labs Black I tested the “live logic” feature. Again there are many, many ways you could use the software. To make it possible for our readers to copy I consulted the Live Logic at the 60th minute of the match and placed a bet based upon the statistical prediction given at that time.

Form Labs Black costs £150 a month, £300 a quarter or £1,000 for 12 months after your initial FREE 28 days.

By the way, I also said in the Intro that I would report the results from the Daily Reports, available in the “Lite” version. Unfortunately the April results are not yet posted up on the software. So I’ll report the last three posted months.

Stake	Profit	ROI
Jan 2012	94.5	2.42	2.56
Feb 2012	117.5	7.42	6.31
Mar 2012	120.49	1.25	1.04

These results are below the average since July 2010 which has a total ROI of 9.55. But nevertheless it shows a profit, and profit is profit!

So how did I do with my three systems?

Here are the bald final figures. I have to say that instinctively I thought it was a mistake to continue the testing after about week 8. The last few weeks of the major leagues are very unpredictable – too many teams have nothing to lose or nothing to play for and form becomes much more unpredictable (as it does at the start of the season). This was born out with the results. Obviously past form becomes less important as the season ends. So I wasn't surprised when the results dipped after week 8.

All results are to £10 level stakes.

Summary of Results:

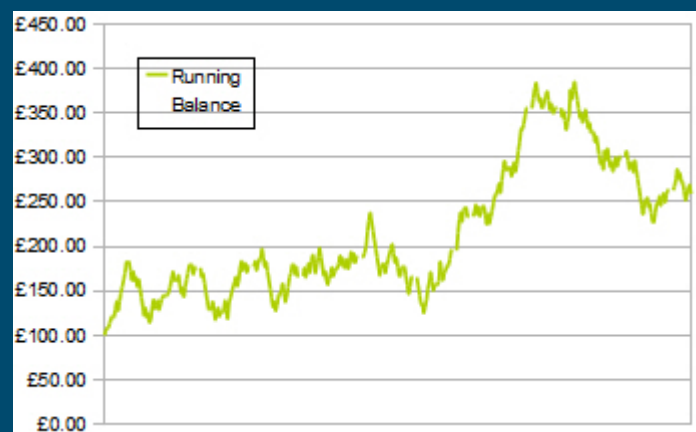

“Game Notes” (Lite Version)

Start Bank: £100

Total Trial P/L: £159.14

Final Balance: £259.14

362 bets 140 losers Strike Rate: 61.3%

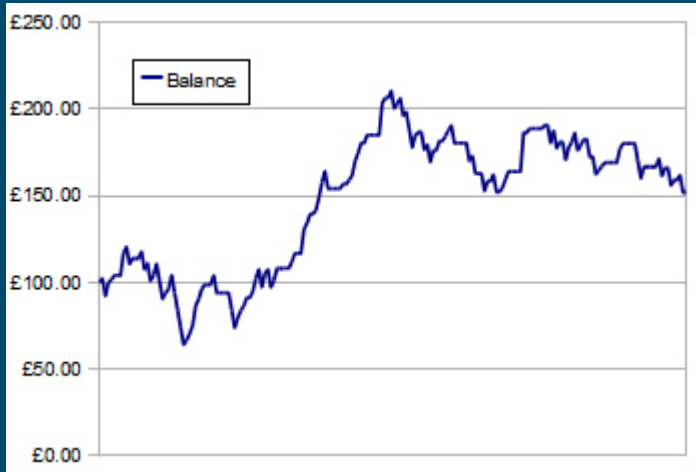

“Half-Time In-Play” (Pro Version)

Start Bank: £100

Total Trial P/L: £52.03

Final Balance: £152.03

131 bets 38 losers Strike Rate: 70.9%

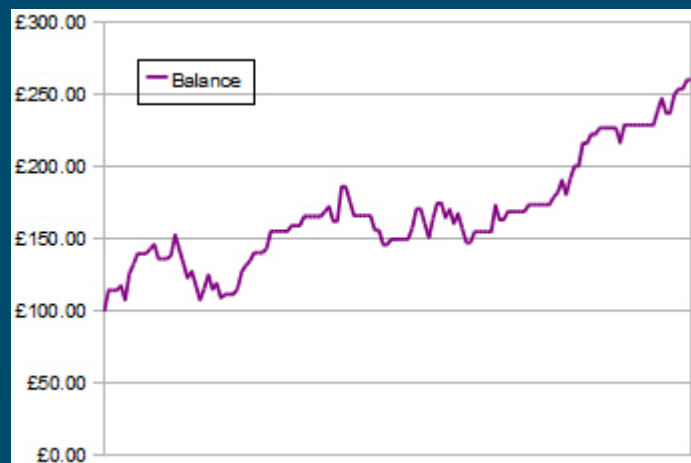

“60 Minute Live Logic” (Black Version)

Start Bank: £100

Total Trial P/L: £160.41

Final Balance: £260.41

75 bets 24 losers Strike Rate: 68%

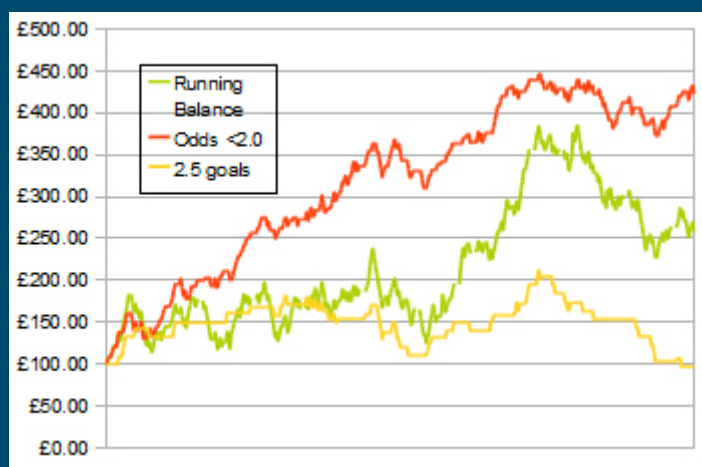

Interestingly the results for Form Labs Black held up in the final weeks – which makes sense, as it is based upon what is actually happening in the match at the 60 minute mark. So the end-of-season blues don't seem have had such an effect.

It is obvious that I would need more skill for the half-time queries to be more profitable. This emphasises the fact that how you read the software is vital.

The Game Notes interpretation is easier. Before the end-of-season period of unpredictability it was regularly profitable. The 2.5 goals selections were doing OK until the last 2 or 3 weeks, probably for the reason above.

Much more interesting is the application of a simple filter to the Game Notes selections. And that is to simply only take the selected bet if the odds are less than 2.0. Throughout the review using this filter has been more profitable than taking all the selections and much better than taking only the 2.5 goal selections. The profitability of this filter has even held up during the end of season weeks. It went slightly down after the high of week 8, but not drastically so.

So the recommendation is to take the obvious bet from the game notes and only back it if the odds are under 2.0.

The “Game Notes” are available whichever version you subscribe to. I would recommend using them after the first three or four games of the new season, when form is established and stop using them in the final three or four weeks of the season. Furthermore, to only bet on the suggested bet if the odds are below 2.0 (and I never went lower than 1.33). Further experimentation would be needed to use the in-play queries of the Pro version (but you could paper trade your experiments while you profited on the Game Notes). The “Live Logic” predictions at the 60-minute mark seem to be conclusively profitable. There are also many more features included in the “Black” version of the software.

With such a vast amount of data available, it is hardly surprising that some of my experimental systems were less profitable. But my aim in this review was to see if one could make a profit using the software. I think this has been conclusively proved.

Rating: ★★★★★

Triple H Horseracing – Final Review

15th May 2012

Sgt Colin Reviews Triple H Horseracing

Rating: ★★★★★

Hi, Sgt Colin here, with the results from my fourth review for BettingSystemtruths.com & the sister website LayTheOdds.com. I reviewed the Triple H Horseracing service, which is available through Steve Davidson, but is written by "Zen". This is a horseracing system which provides rules for selecting horses to win or place in certain UK handicap races. It is available for a one off payment of £69.95. The system does not come as a "pdf", but is an encrypted download which prevents copying.

Without giving too much away, Triple H Horseracing requires you to make selections by comparing bookmakers & Betfair odds, both for win & place bets, and placing bets with the bookie when certain criteria are met. The system states that c90 minutes may be required for the selection process, prior to racing starting.

However, if that is too much trouble, Zen provides a selection service for the following prices: £47 per month, £99 for 3 months if you don't buy the system, and £30 per month, £70 for 3 months if you also acquire it.

I monitored two separate sets of results – referred to as Versions 1 & 2 – resulting from different classes of handicap race, and the use of both level staking and a recommended staking plan for each.

1. Results

Overall, the selections were very profitable, and using the recommended staking plan we turned a 300 point bank into 449 points (using Version 1, which had more selections) at an ROI of 20%, 732 points staked from 129 selections. Using Version 2 we gained 99 points at a slightly higher ROI, 21% from 476 points staked on 84 selections.

Using level stakes we made lower gains and lower % returns – 14 points using version 1 at 6% ROI, and 22 points using version 2 at 13% ROI.

The nature of the horses selected (high odds) makes the strike rate relatively low. Overall, we had an 8.5% strike rate on Version 1 – so you have to be prepared for potentially long fallow periods.

The staking plan weighted the stakes on the relatively lower odds selections (lowest odds using the system are 5/1), and these were the most successful, hence the better performance of the staking plan than level stakes.

The results were spectacular early in the trial, but fell away rather in the second half. In mid March we peaked at 573 points, with a 52% return, but over the final month we only had 1 winner from 38 selections (and very few placed horses).

2. Ease of Use

So despite the strong results, why have I only given it 3.5 stars? That's really down to ease of use.

I found the self selection of qualifying races far too time consuming to be viable – and there were large numbers of days when Zen, who is presumably doing this for a living couldn't find any selections. Spending 90 minutes a day to potentially come up with nothing, is not something which works for me.

So these results were achieved by using the Triple H Horseracing selection service provided by Zen. As mentioned in the introduction, this is not a service which you can bet on using Betfair or Starting Prices, so you need to be at the computer and make the bet as soon as the selection is received, otherwise the advised odds will probably shorten. I found it difficult to back at the advised odds on numerous occasions, which isn't to say that the advised odds were unobtainable – just that I wasn't able to monitor the odds immediately.

League Table of Reviews

Return

A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank. Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit as %age of bank is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, it is a valid at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

The league table now includes systems that have finished their reviews as well. At the moment it only includes systems that have recently finished but I will look to add more next month.

We have seventeen reviews that have made a profit of over 15%.
