Profitable Lays – Final Review

Profitable Lays
The successful high gain - low risk strategy

Let me show you a laying system that has so far made over £700 profit a month using just £25 stakes to easily recorded Betfair SP prices that requires no prior racing knowledge, mathematics, science or luck. Profitable Lays finds an average of 4 to 5 races a day to bet on, with an average losing S.P of just 11/8.

20th September 2011

Inspector DJ – Reviews Profitable Lays

Hello Bloggers,

Profitable Lays is an e-book of just 14 pages, written by Chris Adams.

The cost of purchasing the manual is currently £67, discounted from its normal price of £97.

Profitable Lays produce place lay bets at Betfair SP for UK mainland races, and there is no requirement to watch races or the markets.

The review lasted for 56 betting days, and bets were found on a daily basis.

Each selection was laid at a value of one point. The manual did not make a provision for a bank, so I started the review with a bank of 100 points.

I would normally like to publish the selections provided from the system, but as I felt that this would give an indication of how the selections are arrived at, each days entry showed the number of selections for the day, how many bets were won, and the profit or loss for the day.

The final results were as follows:

Total Selections: 1037

Winning lay bets: 609

Strike Rate: 58.7%.

Loss to date: -16.90 points.

Current bank: 83.10 points.

During the course of the review, the high point was at a profit of 9.62 points, and the low point at a loss of 30.36 points.

The sales page says "Let me show you a laying system that so far has made over £700 per month profit using just £25 stakes to recorded Betfair prices".

With a loss of nearly seventeen points, there is quite a difference between the live test and the aspirations for the system.

I found the system itself to be straightforward to use, and you can obtain the selections when you can access the full race cards. I have access to them during the course of the evening, so I was able to find the selections before the evening was finished.

Depending on when you can access the Racing Post cards, it may affect the odd race here and there, but I would not expect to a great extent, as non-runners are declared either the previous day, or during the morning in the main.

I must admit I liked the system's rationale, and as I have previously said, found it straightforward to use. The only issue that I really have is that it failed to live up to the expectations on the sales pitch.

Unfortunately, Profitable Lays will have to be consigned to the failed category.

Good Luck everyone,

Inspector DJ

Sprinter Lays -Final Review

September 20th

Inspector Lee Reviews Sprinter Lays

Hello Bloggers,

This is the final review of Sprinter Lays.

Sprinter Lays is a horse racing lay service from the well-known Betfan management company they offer a free 7 day trial service then offer 2 payment plans of either £34 a month or £68 a quarter.

The selections are received via email and you also have the back up of your own user name and password which you can use in the Betfan members area, only once did the selections not arrive in my inbox so I can safely say that this a reliable service.

The selections were received usually between 9 and 10am although on the odd occasion selections were sent the night before which I found strange giving that a lot of things can change before race time (ground, runners etc etc), bets were received 6 days out of 7 with Sunday being their day off.

According to the Sprinter Lays website the author made 67 Pts profit from December to February so let's see how the 84 days review went on.

The author advised a 75Pt bank and with each selection he/she advised how much liability should be used with each selection.

In the 84 days I received 137 selections in which 21 were winners which made it 84.67% strike rate but as we look deeper into the results we can see the problem of this service.

Out of 137 selections only 10 were less than 3.00 BSP and a whopping 44 were over 10.00 in fact 92 selections were over 6.00 which surely for a laying service is far too high, in the early days of the review it was slow going, with it taking up to day 22 to be in profit on the 1pt liability side, day 37 saw the service be 7pts up but a week later losses saw the service running at a loss again, the service then endured a purple patch and by the time the initial 56 day review had ended things were looking up with the service being up by 10pts (1pt liability) this continued to day 74 with 22.22pts profit in the 1pt liability section and up by £45 at £10 per point.

Unfortunately my fears of the high odds selections came back to haunt Sprinter Lays as 3 big losses killed the service at odds of 9.14, 16.00 and 8.60 and as the old adage goes if you play with fire eventually you will get burnt and that is what happened here, the last 3 days brought 2 more losses (4.35 & 8.43) and unfortunately for Sprinter Lays that was that.

My final thoughts are that this laying service seemed very promising at one point but I always had this nagging doubt that a big priced winner was around the corner and my fears came true and with the service running at a big loss plus the £68 subscription fee, then unfortunately it will have to go into the failed category.

The results on the Sprinter Lays website haven't been updated since the end of February, which for me speaks volumes.

Final Bank 60.87Pts -14.13Pts

Starting Bank 75Pts

Total P/L to Date at £10 Per Point Stakes= - £141.30

Total P/L For Level Stakes of 1Pt Liability= -18.12Pts

Betting Profits Soccer

– Final Review

25th Sept 2011

Sgt Rich reviews Betting Profits

I think this is a good time to close down this review. Two consecutive losses show some frailty with this system and I'm not sure at all about the validity of now only reviewing my own adaptation/system. That doesn't seem to be the main purpose of our website. I failed the software and the basic systems some time ago.

Here's what I said after Day 56 of the review of Betting Profits which costs £17.

The 56-day review period is over and we are in a very strange position. The software that I am reviewing is failed, as far as I am concerned.

The software works out odds, based upon trying to make more profit when the shorter priced selection wins. It is a simple piece of software, but there are faults with it. For example if you select total stakes of 100 points, the stakes are worked out automatically, but don't always total up to exactly 100! Also sometimes the predicted profit is not correct when you check it on a normal calculator.

The software doesn't install correctly as per the manual and you have to find the path to the program because the shortcuts don't work or are not created. Then it stopped working when I upgraded to a Windows 7 laptop. I contacted the vendor to report the problem and never got a reply! I thought I was going to have to abandon the review but worked out a fix of my own, to work around the fact that the software wouldn't load standardly. Although the software is cheap, that doesn't excuse the fact that it is flaky around the edges.

For the soccer matches, I compared the profits achieved by the software's recommended stakes, versus a simple dutching of the selections to earn an even profit whatever the successful selection. I used the free arbcroncher website to do this and over the 56 days it has consistently produced higher profit using flat dutching than the varied stakes of Betting Profits.

Therefore I have to conclude that the software is worse to use and produces less profit than the free arbcroncher.

There are three "systems" included in the manual that comes with the software. The boxing and horse racing systems have made a loss and so are also failed. The manual gives some general suggestions as regards soccer, rather than system rules. Because the advice was non-specific, I decided to formulate some fixed rules for soccer, based upon the advice in the manual and including some of my ideas. This is so far, a successful system. So after 56 days we have a failed piece of software and generally failed systems accompanying it and we are left simply reviewing my own system.

I think, personally it would be better for someone else to review my system, but we have linked it to the Betting Profits product and made it available to those who purchase the software.

This soccer system is producing profit, but the strange position is that it is basically my system, adapted from the Betting Profits advice. So we have ended up reviewing my system rather than Betting Profits!

Anyway, for now, we will continue the review for the soccer and drop the other failed systems. Matches are getting harder to find due to it coming to the end of the season and many matches are not properly competitive. Anyway we'll see how it continues.

Since then I've continued with only my adaptation of the Soccer advice and without using the software. I've done 12 more soccer matches, with 9 winning bets and 3 losing bets – which is a 75% strike rate and a loss of -64.74 points. This shows the frailty of the system and how it requires a high strike rate.

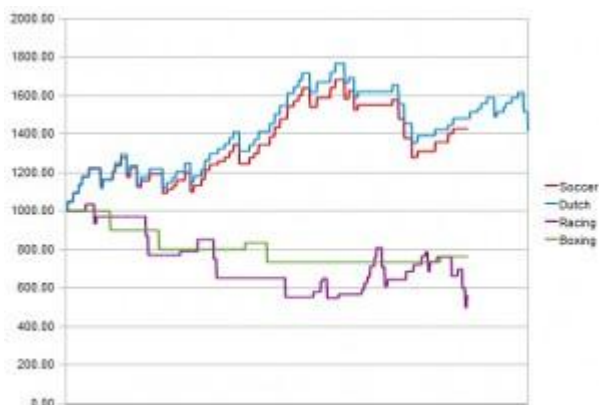

There is every chance it would continue making a profit, in the long run, but I can't recommend it. Maybe one day the adapted system could be tested by another independent reviewer, but for now I want to close this off with a "fail" for the basic product as sold.

As regards the adapted system, we have had, in total, bets on 68 soccer matches with 53 winning bets and 15 losing bets, which is a 78% strike rate.

Here are the totals so far for flat dutching without the software, up to day 66:

Soccer	Dutching
Day P/L	-100.00
Cumulative P/L	416.31
Cumulative Bank (1,000 points start)	1416.31

Here's the graph showing all three systems and the continued flat dutching system.

These are the results we achieved for the three basic systems, up to day 56:

	Soccer	Racing	Boxing
Cumulative P/L	426.88	-441.27	-236.72
Cumulative Bank (1,000 points start)	1426.88	558.73	763.28

The racing had 23 winning bets and 13 losing ones – a 64% strike rate for a loss of -441.27 points.

The boxing had 2 winning bets and 3 losing ones – a 40% strike rate for a loss of -236.72 points.

League Table of Current Reviews

A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank. Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit as %age of bank is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, it is a valid at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

I've colour coded the reviews that are the currently most successful, with the colour of their profitability graph to make them easier to spot.

The Betplan and Beaten Females continue to do well. Magic Racing Bot has had a good week. ExBookie has done very well this week. It will be interesting to see if its success can be maintained

Profitability Graph

Here is a graph of the profit being made by the front-runners as a percentage of their starting bank. This gives a week by week comparative view of their progress.

It gives a representation of the volatility or dependability of each system. Ideally we would want a graph that increased each week by roughly the same amount. If a system or tipping service could produce that, then we would really have a winning review!

I'm only including those that are currently making over 20% profit. Racing Profits will be added to the graph next week, if it continues to be on-form. Sprint Lay Expert and Bonus Bagging look like they are uncatchable. ABSX Tommy's Method has come to the end of the review now (Final Review next week) and above all others (apart from Bonus Bagging) this has shown the most consistent, steady improvement.
