League Table of Current Reviews

Return

A reasonable way of comparing the performance of systems is to work out the profit (or loss) as a percentage of the starting bank. Obviously this table doesn't replace reading the reviews, because profit as %age of bank is not the only factor in judging a system. Nevertheless, it is a valid at-a-glance way of bringing the mass of data together.

I've colour coded the reviews that are the currently most successful, with the colour of their profitability graph (next newsletter section) to make them easier to spot.

A mediocre week, NFL Betting System continues to do well but Winning Trainers Each Way has crashed at the moment. Magic Backing Bot, after a good few weeks has moved into 2nd position.

Profitability Graph

Return to Contents/Index

Here is a graph of the profit being made by the front-runners as a percentage of their starting bank. This gives a week by week comparative view of their progress.

It gives a representation of the volatility or dependability of each system. Ideally we would want a graph that increased each week by roughly the same amount. If a system or tipping service could produce that, then we would really have a winning review!

This week, Winning Trainers has crashed. I'll keep it on the graph in the hope that it turns around next week. NFL Betting System continues to do well and Magic Backing Bot has moved nicely into profit over the past few weeks.

Bloggers Corner

Return to Contents/Index

A blogger, Alan, asks about “Permanent Income System”

This system, by John Goldsmith, promises a million in a couple of years by the use of compounding. Although the manual denies that it is a stop-at-a-winner system this is in fact what it is, backing favourites in 3 consecutive lines and using loss-retrieval, which can mean scary stakes when the winners are slow to appear. The cost is £297 and there is no refund. It requires quite a lot of time watching for the favourite until just before the off, plus calculation to ensure that the correct stake is used in order to secure the desired profit. Have you heard of it?

Another reader, John, wonders if anyone has any experience of Lee Bolingbroke’s service:

I am continually receiving text message to contact Lee Bolingbroke regarding his service. I am loath to phone any of these services after being totally ripped off before.

However going by his text messages I am amazed that I do not hear or receive anything about this service (from other sources) and believe me I get enough emails from football/racing services.
